THE TRIBUNE.

FROM EUROPE.

Farther advices by the Great Western and Britannia.

The steamship BRITANNIA, Capt. Hewitt, arrived at Boston on Sunday afternoon, after a passage of 17 days, having left Liverpool on the 21st instead of the 18th, her advertised day. By this arrival we have our regular London advices to the 20th, enabling us to bring up the intelligence to our date by the Great Western. The substance is given below.

Cotton had improved a little at Liverpool, from apprehensions of a war with the United States. These apprehensions were nearly dissipated, but Cotton still maintained its advance of 4d.

CHINA.—By the overland mail, we have advices from Canton to the 27th of June—one week later than those by the Huntress and Narragansett at this port. No accommodation had taken place, nor was any probable. The British appear to have located themselves permanently at Hong-Kong, sold out (or leased) the lots, appointed a Governor, started a newspaper, &c. The lots brought good prices at auction. Meantime all at Canton remains as it was, very little trade going on, the Chinese purchasing nothing and even selling Tea sparingly. The hostility of the Chinese is unabated and their spirit unabated. The English, on the other hand, are resolved to make no more treaties without ample guarantees for future good behavior. They will insist on a large cession of territory, a resident agent at Pekin, and a large indemnity for the expenses of the war.

The British force is concentrating for a Northward movement—first on Amoy, but we presume ultimately on Pekin itself. Elliot is as much disliked as ever, and the arrival of Sir Henry Pottinger anxiously expected. Elliot has sent $5,000,000 of his late contribution levied on Canton to India.

SPAIN.—The American gives the following summary of the origin and outbreak of the late insurrection: A revolutionary movement has been attempted in Spain in favor of Queen Christina, and absolute government. Some persons of eminence were implicated in the insurrection, and it for a time excited serious interest. But at the late date it seems to have been in a great measure suppressed, and the authority of the Regent firmly established, which was received in Paris on the 18th, announcing the capture and execution of the chief of the Madrid insurrection, Gen. Diego Leon. The Counts de Requena and Brigadier Quiroga were taken at Alcarabaca, concealed in a cart laden with hay. The Duke of San Carlos, who was with them, made his escape.

The insurrection first broke out at Pamplona, where Gen. O'Donnell, in the employ of Queen Christina, having bribed the troops, took possession of the citadel, a strong fortress which commands the whole of the town, by which it is surrounded. The constitutional authorities under Kribi, viceroy of the province, watched the citadel, but could conduct no operations, as O'Donnell had the town in his power.

As soon as the news of this attack reached Madrid, Espartero having received information that certain officers were connected with it who were in command of regiments at Madrid, ordered their arrest. On the 7th, however, a desperate attack was made on the palace with the hope of seizing the Queen. The royal guard had been bribed, but twenty devoted soldiers defended the royal apartments till Espartero could bring aid from without, when, after an action of five hours, the insurgents were defeated. Madrid was perfectly quiet after this event, the people having taken no part in it. We shall give more particulars of this insurrection hereafter.

Espartero had effected a loan of £600,000 on the security of the salt and stamp duties.

The following is the latest account from Spain:

LONDON, Oct. 23, 2 o'clock A.M.

We have received by extraordinary express a letter from our Paris correspondent, dated 6 o'clock P.M., Thursday, 21st inst. It contains only the following:

"You may regard the insurrection in Spain as at an end. The principal chiefs of it are either arrested or have taken refuge in France. Among the former is M. Montes de Oca.

"The regiments which had taken part in the revolt have submitted to the Regent, and have taken anew the oath of fidelity to the present Government. Of these the Regiment du Bourbon is the most important.

"The entire population of the country through which the army of Rodil passed submitted.

"I wrote you to-day that by arrivals of the 17th inst. from Barcelona, the revolutionary movement in that city continued. The Republicans of Barcelona have made an appeal to the Republicans of France."

[Times.]

The British Revenue exhibits a slight improvement, both on the year and the quarter, as compared with 1840.

There was an unprecedented high tide at London on the 13th October, filling the streets and choking the drains and sewers. About 10,000 houses suffered by it.

There was a frightful explosion of a steam engine in the machine and tool shop of M. Elce & Co. Manchester, recently. The engineer and four others were killed, and several others dreadfully injured. No explanation.

There have been several heavy failures at Glasgow, lately: debts over $1,000,000.
